Supervisors/tutors:

WORKING METHODS

The aim of SAAR is to discuss in depth the participants' research projects within the developing discourses of art practice and research. This happens through different forms of supervision and intensive conversation. SAAR is based on the participants' projects and is centered in the discussion of the projects. Supervisors are there to facilitate the discussion and to participate in working groups.

Written presentations – before start

Before the start of SAAR 2017 all participants will send in short written presentations describing their research projects. The participants send in the presentations in via an electronic form that will be distributed by the coordinator. The presentations will be published on-line.

The main questions to be answered in the presentation are:

- Give a short general presentation of your work
- Describe the context of your research
- Summarize in 3 bullet points the main problems/questions/objectives in your research
- Choose 5 key words to describe your research

This presentation should be in a maximum 1 A4. The presentations should be read by all participants thoroughly before the start of the week.

The deadline for sending in the presentation is Friday June 9th. The online electronic form is in the address:

<https://my.surveypal.com/SAAR-2017-written-presentations>

Opening live presentations – as SAAR week starts

As a warm up session to kick off SAAR 2017 participants will give short live presentations. The time is a maximum of 10 minutes per person/presentation. The format for the presentation is open – all forms of communication are welcome. The presentation can e.g. include an action/practice element. The presentation should include:

- A very brief contextualization of your research topic – outline the core elements
- Choose one (1) specific question/problem/objective in your research that you would like to explore during the SAAR week. Highlight this problem/question/objective with a practical example/s

Do not go in-depth in your research project in the presentation. It should just give your fellow participants a general idea of your research topic. The live presentation works as a source of complementary information to the written presentation you have written beforehand.

Group discussions/workshops

“Group discussions” are held as parallel discussions, with 4–5 groups at the time. The group discussions are based on the initiatives of the participants. Each participant will initiate at least one group discussion during the week. The discussions should be quite improvised, and not too prepared, in order for us to dive into where ever in the process the researcher is at right now.

In order to start the group discussion the participant should prepare a 5 minutes “action”, which is then followed by an open conversation. The action could be a physical action, giving instruction to the group members, trying out something with the participants, reading text, asking others to read, showing visual material etc. It should somehow “open a window” towards a domain that the researcher wishes to discuss. At the beginning of the week, we will decide when each research participant initiates a group discussion/workshop, and from day to day, we will make sure that there is an equal distribution of participants and supervisors across the groups. Instructions for how reporting from the group sessions will be done, is provided during the start of the Academy.

Summing up

The summing up- sessions will be short, but here the groups will report the main issues they have discussed, we will plan the day ahead, and make sure all practicalities are on track.

Individual supervision

The participants will have the possibility to sign up for individual supervision with the supervisors. Schedules for this will be drawn up at the beginning of the week.

Presentations at the end of the week

We will end the week with the participants presenting what they have realized about their project during the week: what has been clarified, what do they want to continue with, what is still unclear etc. It is an individual summary of the week, but still part of the experimentation with/within the project. Each participant has 30 minutes (including discussion) and the formats of the presentations can vary, the participants can decide how to dispose the time.

We encourage to experiment with the format of presentation or to collaborate. Some preparation time will be provided and we will make a schedule for the presentations once we know technical requirements and which space each presenter wants to use.

In order to vary the activities, we will encourage participants to use all the spaces, included the outdoor space, during the group discussions.

Other activities

In terms of social activities, we will provide information about interesting events or other possible activities in Helsinki in the evenings. These will not be compulsory, but some might decide to go together. On Thursday we will organize an excursion in Helsinki. More information about the excursion will be provided later on. On Saturday evening, we will go out on the town for a joint dinner.
